"These Historical Novels have taught all men this truth, which looks like a truism, and yet was as good as unknown to writers of history and others, till so taught: that the bygone ages of the world were actually filled by living men, not by protocols, state-papers, controversies, and abstractions of men."

ADDENDA.

- Mrs. Catherwood's The Story of Tonty (page 77) is now published in England by Mr. Grant Richards.
- Marmaduke Pickthall's Saïd, the Fisherman (page 127) is now published in America by Messrs. McClure, Phillips, & Co.
- Two romances of considerable merit have appeared since the final revision of my List, viz.: The Cardinal's Pawn, by K. L. Montgomery (Fisher Unwin), and The Gods are Just, by the late Miss Beatrice H. Barnby (Duckworth); the first deals with Mediæval Venice, and the second with the England of "South Sea Bubble" days.

PREFACE TO THE THIRD EDITION.

THERE is a justifiable feeling against superfluous prefaces, and the fact that this little volume is entering the third stage of its existence might appear to suggest that the time had gone by for explanations. In the present instance, however, when something like a "new" book is offered, an extra word or two may not be altogether out of place.

The old saying, "experience teaches," holds good pre-eminently in the case of a work of reference; errors of omission and commission are pointed out in this or that quarter, and not infrequently a criticism of the kind may be accepted as the basis of genuine improvement. This must be my plea in response to objectors who, possessing the earlier incomplete editions, feel somewhat aggrieved on learning that such substantial changes and additions have been made! The very kind reception accorded my original effort led me to at once embark on labours which, without any such encouragement, I could scarcely have faced. At this point I should like to specify the many suggestions and criticisms from which I have tried to reap profit, but conditions of space forbid, and I must content myself with expressing my obligations in one direction only. To Prof. C. S. Fearenside, who has done such good work in the department of History proper, I am indebted for exceedingly valuable advice.

Perhaps I shall best serve those consulting my pages if I briefly enumerate the principal features in this new edition. Passing over general revision and enlargement, I would call attention to the following points:—

(1.) Detailed description of individual books (with special reference to localities and personages), instead of vague, general groupings like “Norman Conquest,” “French Revolution,” &c., &c. It is hoped that the usefulness of the list will be thereby so greatly enhanced as to justify the labour involved in this extra specification.

(2.) Large increase in the “Supplementary List” of semi-historical novels. It was felt that (as an appreciative reviewer in The Journal of Education pointed out) many works originally placed in the general list might, with great advantage, be transferred to this supplementary section. Moreover, several entirely new novels have been brought in.

(3.) Specially good books have been marked. This will, I trust, meet the objection made in a few quarters that my choice was too comprehensive. Moreover, a list of “Fifty Representative Historical Novels” (already printed elsewhere) is offered for the consideration of those readers who approach Romance in a more or less critical mood.

(4.) Amalgamation of the two Juvenile Lists (English History). Books with decidedly “Boyish” or “Girlish” tendencies are marked accordingly. Many new tales have been added in this department.

(5.) Throughout the volume American Publishers are given as well as English.

(6.) Original publication dates have been given (Authors and Titles Index); in the case of a translation, the date is that of the book in its first form (French, German, Hungarian, &c.) Wherever possible, the title-page date has been taken. My special reason for inserting these dates, at no little cost of time and pains, is to show those who care for such knowledge, under what period of historical criticism or non-criticism any book was written. Moreover, such dates may be of assistance to bibliographers generally.

(7.) Lastly, three-column arrangement of lists — thus enabling the tabular form to be straight down instead of across the page; this will, I feel sure, be much handier in the case of quick reference.

There is one small matter to which I would allude. Through the mis-reading, doubtless, of a passage in my Introduction, I see that a too indulgent critic has ascribed to me an achievement to which I cannot lay claim. Though a lover of Historical Novels, I have not “read thousands of such works”; the compliment is a doubtful one!

PREFACE TO THE SECOND EDITION.

THE opinion having been very generally expressed that an Index of Authors and Titles was essential in a work of reference such as the present, the author gladly avails himself of the opportunity (so soon given !) to remedy the defect in this respect. As regards the List itself, some mistakes of spelling, &c., have been corrected, but no attempt has been made to add fresh examples. In the two or three months since preparation, very few noticeable historical romances have appeared ; should, however, the kind reception given to the little volume on its first appearance be extended to it in this slightly enlarged form—thus admitting of still further revision—every effort will be made to keep the List as up-to-date as possible.

Several of the minor criticisms which have been passed on the author's method scarcely call for notice, but something may, perhaps, be said in regard to two objections which have been made. Firstly, a misunderstanding seems to have prevailed in certain quarters over the Suggested Courses of Reading (Juvenile). These were drawn up primarily with a view to assist Parents and Teachers who might wish to know of likely books dealing with the various English Reigns ; it never occurred to the compiler that such "suggested courses" would be taken as dictating to young people what they should read ! Secondly, it has been urged that the List is too comprehensive (though, it should be mentioned, this very feature of inclusiveness has been specially commended in other critical quarters). In the early stages of compilation a much more restricted method was adopted, but, in deference to opinions expressed on the part of Educational and other authorities, besides a growing conviction on the compiler's own part, the List was greatly expanded. It was specially implied that the term "best" was to be taken in the sense of "best available" for the several sections, and the choice was made with a due regard to varieties of taste, &c. Certainly it was nowhere hinted (as one reviewer seemed to suggest) that writers like James, Ainsworth, Grant, &c., were to be classed among "best authors"—indeed, the very contrary was asserted in the Introduction itself. To anyone calling in question the claim made for the List, that it is select and something more than a mere Catalogue, at least one very simple test may be suggested; let such a sceptical reader compare the list here offered with that compiled by Mr. Bowen, and he will find that, of the 1160 or so books given in the latter, not more than about 250 reappear.

That the "Guide" has proved of use to some may be inferred from the fact that a new edition is called for within so short a time. It has been stated in one quarter that the idea of the book was praiseworthy enough, but impossible to carry out; may not the old saying—solvitur ambulando—be, to some extent, applied here?

INTRODUCTION.

It is not proposed, in these preliminary remarks, to sketch in detail the origin and growth of the Historical Novel; this has already been amply done by Professor Saintsbury and others. I shall be content to approach the subject on its general side, offering, at the same time, some critical suggestions which will, I hope, not be without value to readers of Romance.

But, first of all, I must explain how the List which follows came to be compiled, and the object I have in offering it. For many years I have been an assiduous reader of novels and tales in which the historical element appeared, supplementing my own reading in this direction by a careful study of all that I could find in the way of Criticism on such works and their writers. Only in this way could I venture on a selection involving a survey of several thousand volumes! With the above understanding, I can say that no book has been inserted without some reason, while I have made all possible effort to obtain accuracy of description. And this leads me to remark, that just in this process of selection do I claim originality for my List. Nearly twenty years ago an excellent "Descriptive Catalogue of Historical Novels and Tales" was published; Mr. H. Courthope Bowen was the compiler,* and I would here mention my indebtedness to him. In Mr. Bowen's list, however, one finds good and bad alike—all the works of even such moderately endowed writers as G. P. R. James, Ainsworth, Grant, &c., are there set down. It seemed to me that, not only was there room for a new list of Historical Novels (Stevenson, Marion Crawford, Conan Doyle, Weyman, Mason, and a number of more or less capable romancists having come forward in the last twenty years), but, also, that more than ever was there a need for some sort of clue in the search for such books. In the last year or two there has been an almost alarming influx in this department of Fiction, and teachers in schools, besides readers in general, may be glad to be saved a somewhat tedious investigation.

Having thus attempted to justify the existence of my little "Guide," I pass on to deal with the subject of Historical Fiction itself. Most of us, I suppose, at one time or another have experienced a thrill of interest when some prominent personage, whom we knew well by repute, came before us in the flesh. We watched his manner, and noted all those shades of expression which, in another's countenance, we should have passed by unheeded. Well, it seems to me that, parallel with this experience, is that which we gain when, reading some first-rank romance, we encounter in its pages a figure with which History has made us more or less familiar. And I would remark that the great masters do not, as a rule, make that mistake which less skilful writers fall into—the mistake of introducing well-known historical figures too frequently. The Cromwell of "Woodstock" has an element of mystery about him, even while he stands out before our mental vision in bold relief. Had Scott brought him more prominently into the plot, and thus emphasized the fictional aspect of his figure, our interest in the story, as such, might have been sustained, but we should have lost that atmosphere of vraisemblance which, under a more careful reserve, the hand of the master has wrought for us.

But it is not only this introduction of personalities which constitutes a novel "historical"; the mere allusion to real events, or the introduction of dates, may give us sufficient ground for identifying the period with which a novel deals. Of course, the question as to whether a particular person or event is truly historical, is not always an easy one to answer. By the adaptation in it of some purely mythical character or event, a novel is no more constituted "historical" than is a fairy-tale by the adaptation of folk-lore. King Arthur and Robin Hood are unhistorical, and, if I have ventured to insert in my list certain tales which deal with the latter, it is not on that account, but because other figures truly historical (e.g., Richard I.) appear. As there has been some dispute on this question of the Historical Novel proper, I offer the following definition:—A Novel is rendered Historical by the introduction of dates, personages, or events, to which identification can be readily given. I am quite aware that certain well-known novels which give the general atmosphere of a period—such, for example, as Hawthorne's "Scarlet Letter" and Mr. Hewlett's "Forest Lovers"—do not come within the scope of my definition; but this is just why I have added a "Supplementary List" of semi-historical tales. And, while I am alluding to this "Supplementary List," I should like to give my reason for omitting from it one remarkable book which has every claim to be considered representative of the mid-nineteenth century. Readers of "John Inglesant" may be reminded that in his interesting preface Mr. Shorthouse alludes to William Smith's philosophical novel, "Thorndale." As a picture of Thought developments in the early Victorian period, the latter work has special historical interest for the philosophical and theological student; in this respect it may be likened to Pater's "Marius the Epicurean," which vividly reproduces the Intellectual ferment of an earlier age. "Thorndale," however, is primarily didactic, and the philosophical dialogues (interesting as these are to the metaphysician) hardly atone to the general reader for an almost entire absence of plot. The above is, doubtless, an altogether extreme instance, but the exclusion of several other works from the category of Romance seems to follow on something like the same grounds. Becker's "Charicles" and "Gallus" are little more than school textbooks, while, turning to a less scholarly quarter, Ainsworth's "Preston Fight," and even his better-known "Guy Fawkes," may be cited as illustrating what Mr. Shorthouse means when he speaks of novels "in which a small amount of fiction has been introduced simply for the purpose of relating History." In all such cases the average novel-reader feels that he has been allured on false pretences. I am well aware that not a few of the books included in my List might be considered to fall under the same ban, but I think it will be found that in most of them there is at least a fair attempt to arouse narrative interest.

Coming to the List itself, it will be noticed that I have been somewhat sparing in the books given under the "Pre-Christian" heading. Novels dealing with these very far-off times are apt to be unsatisfactory; the mist in which events and personages are enveloped, takes away from that appearance of reality which is the great charm of the historical novel. We are hardly concerned, in reading "Sarchedon" and similar books, to get away from the purely imaginary pictures which spring from the Novelist's own brain, and the danger is that the very elements which add to our interest in the tale as such, will go far to mislead us in our conception of the period dealt with. There is none of that sense of familiarity which we enjoy when reading a sixteenth or seventeenth century romance: in the latter case, the historical background, being easily perceptible, merges for us with the creations of the author's own imagination. Where the writer of an "ancient" romance happens to be a scholar like Ebers, we feel that—so far at least as historical presentment goes—we cannot be far wrong, but the combination of great scholarship and narrative capacity is, alas, too rare!

I have likewise refrained from giving many tales dealing with Early-Christian times. We are here, it must be admitted, on controversial ground, and under the First Century heading I have endeavoured to insert romances of the highest quality only. For instance, I think that Dr. Abbott's "Philochristus" and Wallace's "Ben Hur" ought to satisfy two different types of readers. And this is the place, doubtless, to say that in my lists will be found books of widely differing merit and aim. School teachers, and others in like capacity, will easily discriminate between authors suitable for juvenile or untrained tastes, and authors whose appeal is specially to those of maturer thought and experience. Differing as much in method and style as in choice of period and character type, Thackeray's "Vanity Fair" and George Eliot's "Romola" have at least this in common—they require a very high degree of intelligence for their due appreciation. Who, among those of us with any knowledge of such works, would dream of recommending them to a youthful reader fresh from the perusal of Miss Yonge's "Little Duke," or Captain Marryatt's "Children of the New Forest"?

Naturally in a list of this kind there is bound to be very great inequality; certain periods have been wholly ignored by writers of the first rank, while in others we have something like an embarras de richesse. Consequently, I have been compelled, here and there, to insert authors of only mediocre merit. In other cases, again, I have not hesitated to omit works by writers of acknowledged position when these have seemed below the author's usual standard, and where no gap had to be filled. I would instance the James II.—William III. period. Here Stanley Weyman and "Edna Lyall" might have been represented, but, there being no dearth of good novels dealing with both the above reigns, I did not deem it advisable to call in these popular writers at the point which has been very generally considered their lowest. I mention this to show that omissions do not necessarily mean ignorance, though, in covering such an immense ground, I cannot doubt that romances worthy of a place in my list have been overlooked.

I think many will be surprised to find how large a proportion of our best writers (English and American) have entered the domain of Historical or Semi-Historical Romance. Scott, Thackeray, Dickens, George Eliot, Charlotte Brontë, George Meredith, R. L. Stevenson, Hawthorne, Peacock, Charles Kingsley, Henry Kingsley, Charles Reade, Anthony Trollope, Mrs. Gaskell, Walter Besant, Lytton, Disraeli, J. H. Newman, J. A. Froude, and Walter Pater—these are a few of the names which appear in the following pages; while Tolstoy, Dumas, Balzac, George Sand, Victor Hugo, De Vigny, Prosper Mérimée, Flaubert, Théophile Gautier, Freytag, Scheffel, Hauff. Auerbach, Manzoni, Pérez Galdós, Mérejkowski, Topelius, Sienkiewicz, and Jókai are, perhaps, the chief amongst those representing Literatures other than our own.

"The Last Days of Pompeii," "The Gladiators," "Hypatia," "Harold," "Ivanhoe," "The Talisman," "Maid Marian," "The Last of the Barons," "Quentin Durward," "Romola," "The Cloister and the Hearth," "In the Palace of the King," "Westward Ho!," "Kenilworth," "The Chaplet of Pearls," "A Gentleman of France," "John Inglesant," "The Three Musketeers," "Twenty Years After," "Woodstock," "Peveril of the Peak," "Old Mortality," "The Betrothed Lovers" ("I Promessi Sposi"), "Lorna Doone," "The Refugees," "In the Golden Days," "The Courtship of Morrice Buckler," "Dorothy Forster," "The Men of the Moss Hags," "Esmond," "The Virginians," "Heart of Midlothian," "Waverley," "The Master of Ballantrae," "Kidnapped," "Catriona," "The Chaplain of the Fleet," "The Seats of the Mighty," "Barnaby Rudge," "A Tale of Two Cities," "War and Peace"—what visions do these mere titles arouse within many of us! And, though most of the books given in my list cannot be described in the same glowing terms as the masterpieces* just named, yet many "nests of pleasant thoughts" may be formed through their companionship.

Hitherto allusion has been mainly in the direction of modern authors, and I would now say a word or two in regard to those of an earlier period who are also represented.

* "Masterpieces," that is, in their several degrees; perhaps I was somewhat rash to invite the criticism that "Quentin Durward," "Esmond," &c., find themselves in very unequal company!

Defoe, Fielding, Richardson, Goldsmith, Smollett, Frances Burney, Samuel Lover, John Galt, Maria Edgeworth, Susan Ferrier, William Godwin, Mary Shelley, Fenimore Cooper, J. G. Lockhart, Leigh Hunt, Thomas Moore, Harriet Martineau, J. L. Motley, Horace Smith, Charles Lever, Meadows Taylor, and William Carleton—these (in greater or less degree) notable names were bound to have a place; and, coming to less distinguished writers, I may mention the brothers Banim, Gerald Griffin, Mrs. S. C. Hall, Lady Morgan, the sisters Porter, W. G. Simms, George Croly, Albert Smith, G. R. Gleig,* W. H. Maxwell, Sir Arthur Helps, Eliot Warburton, Lewis Wingfield, Thomas Miller, C. Macfarlane, Grace Aguilar, Anne Manning, and Emma Robinson (author of “Whitefriars”). To G. P. R. James, Harrison Ainsworth, and James Grant I have previously alluded. It has been my endeavour to choose the best examples of all the above-named novelists—a task rendered specially difficult in some cases by the fact of immense literary output. Doubtless not a few of the works so chosen are open to criticism, but they will at least serve to illustrate certain stages in the growth of Historical Romance. With the exclusion of Mrs. Radcliffe, Mrs. Marsh,† Mrs. Gore, Lady Blessington, Lady Fullerton, Mrs. Bray, and Mrs. Child, few will, I imagine, find fault; but writers like Miss Tucker (A.L.O.E.) and Miss Emily Holt still find so many readers in juvenile quarters, that it has required a certain amount of courage to place them also on my Index Expurgatorius! Turning once again to writers of the sterner sex, I have ruled out C. R. Maturin,

* This author is not represented in the present (3rd) edition.

† Mrs. Marsh’s “Father Darcy” is now given a place in my List.

G. W. M. Reynolds, and Pierce Egan, Junr.; and (quitting the "sensational" for the "mildly entertaining") out of the Rev. J. M. Neale's many historical tales I have selected only one—"Theodora Phranza," which, besides being well written, has the merit of dealing with a somewhat neglected period. Stories possessing a background of History are to be found in "Tales from Blackwood," as also in "Wilson's Tales of the Borders," but their extremely slight character seemed scarcely to justify insertion; while not even the high literary position attained by him on other grounds reconciled me to either of Allan Cunningham's novels—"Sir Michael Scott" and "Paul Jones."

Of the Foreign novelists appearing in my list, several have been already named, but Marchese D'Azeglio, F. D. Guerrazzi, Cesare Cantù, "W. Alexis" (G. Håring), H. Laube, Louise Mühlbach (Klara M. Mundt), Nicolas Jósika, Viktor Rydberg, Hendrik Conscience, Xavier B. Saintine, Amédée Achard, and "Erckmann-Chatrian" here call for notice as not coming under strictly contemporary classification. I would forestall the criticism that two writers have been passed over whose fame is greater than any of those just mentioned, viz., "Stendhal" (Henri Beyle) and Alphonse Daudet. Beyle's "La Chartreuse de Parme," though containing the oft-praised account of Waterloo, is far more Psychological than Historical; and Daudet's "Robert Helmont," while it depicts (under Diary form) certain aspects of the Franco-German War, has hardly any plot running through it. As the Waterloo and Franco-German War periods were amply illustrated in numerous other novels of more assured suitability, I had the less hesitation in deciding against the two works just named. In the selection from Foreign Historical Fiction nothing more has been attempted than to include the leading examples; most of these, it will be found, have been translated into English.

Before leaving the subject of older writers, it may be mentioned that not a few of the works chosen to represent them are, at the moment, out of print. To anyone objecting that something ought to have been done to indicate this in each separate case, I would urge that the "out of print" line can never be drawn with precision in view of constant reprints as well as of further extinctions.

Perhaps this introduction may be most fitly concluded by something in the nature of apology for Historical Romance itself. Not only has fault been found with the deficiencies of unskilled authors in that department, but the question has been asked by one or two critics of standing—What right has the Historical Novel to exist at all? More often than not, it is pointed out, the Romancist gives us a mass of inaccuracies, which, while they mislead the ignorant (i.e., the majority), are an unpardonable offence to the historically-minded reader. Moreover, the writer of such Fiction, though he be a Thackeray or a Scott, cannot surmount barriers which are not merely hard to scale, but absolutely impassable. The spirit of a period is like the selfhood of a human being—something that cannot be handed on; try as we may, it is impossible for us to breathe the atmosphere of a bygone time, since all those thousand-and-one details which went to the building up of both individual and general experience, can never be reproduced. We consider (say) the Eighteenth Century from the purely Historical standpoint, and, while we do so, are under no delusion as to our limitations; we know that a few of the leading personages and events have been brought before us in a more or less disjointed fashion, and are perfectly aware that there is room for much discrepancy between the pictures so presented to us (be it with immense skill) and the actual facts as they took place in such and such a year. But, goes on the objector, in the case of a Historical Romance we allow ourselves to be hoodwinked, for, under the influence of a pseudo-historic security, we seem to watch the real sequence of events in so far as these affect the characters in whom we are interested. How we seem to live in those early years of the Eighteenth Century, as we follow Henry Esmond from point to point, and yet, in truth, we are breathing not the atmosphere of Addison and Steele, but the atmosphere created by the brilliant Nineteenth Century Novelist, partly out of his erudite conception of a former period, and partly out of the emotions and thoughts engendered by that very environment which was his own, and from which he could not escape!

Well, to all such criticisms it seems to me there are ample rejoinders. In the first place, it must be remembered that History itself possesses interest for us more as the unfolding of certain moral and mental developments than as the mere enumeration of facts. Of course, I am aware that the ideal of the Historian is Truth utterly regardless of prejudice and inclination, but, as with all other human ideals, this one is never fully realised, and there is ever that discrepancy between Fact and its Narration to which I just now alluded. This being so, I would ask—Is not the writer of Fiction justified in emphasizing those elements of History which have a bearing on life and character in general? There is, doubtless, a wise and an unwise method of procedure. One novelist, in the very effort to be accurate, produces a work which—being neither History nor Fiction—is simply dull; while another, who has gauged the true relation between fact and imagination, knows better than to bring into prominence that which should remain only as a background. After all, there are certain root motives and principles which, though they vary indefinitely in their application, underlie Human Conduct, and are common to all ages alike. Given a fairly accurate knowledge as regards the general history of any period, combined with some investigation into its special manners and customs, there is no reason why a truly imaginative novelist should not produce a work at once satisfying to romantic and historical instincts.

Again, if it be true that the novelist cannot reproduce the far past in any strict sense, it is also true that neither can he so reproduce the life and events of yesterday. That power of imaginative memory, which all exercise in daily experience, may be held in very different degrees, but its enjoyment is not dependent on accuracy of representation—for, were this so, none of us would possess it. In an analogous manner the writer of Romance may be more or less adequately equipped on the side of History pure and simple, but he need not wait for that which will never come—the power of reproducing in toto a past age. If, in reading what purports to be no more than a Novel, the struggle between Christianity and Paganism (for example), or the unbounded egotism of Napoleon, be brought more vividly before our minds—and this may be done by suggestion as well as by exact relation—then, I would maintain, we are to some extent educated historically, using the word in a large though perfectly legitimate sense.

I recently read a work which here presents itself as admirably illustrating my meaning. In her too little known "Adventures of a Goldsmith," Miss M. H. Bourchier has contrived to bring forcibly before us the period when Napoleon, fast approaching the zenith of his power, was known in France as the "First Consul." The "man of destiny" himself—appearing on the scene for little more than a brief moment—can in no sense be described as one of the book's characters, and yet the whole plot is so skilfully contrived as to hinge on his personality. We are made to feel the dominating influence of that powerful will upon the fears and hopes of a time brimming over with revolutionary movement. Whether the Chouan revolt is in this particular story accurately depicted for us in all its phases, or whether the motives which impelled certain public characters are therein interpreted aright—both in regard to these and other points there may be room for doubt; but at least the general forces of the period are placed before us in such a way as to drive home the conviction that, be the historical inaccuracies of detail what they may in the eyes of this or that specialist, the picture as a whole is one which, while it rivets our attention as lovers of romance, does no injury to the strictest Historic sense.

I know well that numerous novels might be cited which, besides abounding in anachronisms, are harmful in that they present us with a misleading conception of some personality or period; moreover, I acknowledge that this defect is by no means confined to romances of an inferior literary order. That Cromwell has been unreasonably vilified, and Mary Queen of Scots misconceived as a saintly martyr—how often are these charges brought against not a few of our leading exponents of Historical Fiction. Let this be fully granted, it remains to ask—To whom were our novelists originally indebted for these misconceptions?

Were not the historians of an earlier generation responsible for these wrong judgments? True, the real Science of History—the sifting of evidence, and the discovery and unravelling of ancient documents—may be described as an essentially modern attainment, so it would be unreasonable to blame our older historians for errors which it was largely, if not wholly, beyond their power to overcome. And it is just here that I would emphasize my defence of the Romancist. If Historians themselves have differed (and still differ!) may it not be pleaded on behalf of the Historical Novelist that he also must be judged according to the possibilities of his time? For, while he may have too readily adopted false conceptions in the past, there is no necessity why, in the future, he also—profiting by the growth of Critical Investigation—should not have due regard, in the working out of his Historical background, for all the latest “results.” And, I would further add, even though it be true that Scott and others have misled us in certain directions, this does not prevent our acknowledgment that, given their aspect of a particular period, it was only fitting that the scheme of their novels should be in harmony with it. If “bloody Mary” was a cruel hypocrite, then our reading of her period will be influenced by that real (or supposed) fact; but, if further investigation reverses this severe judgment on the woman herself, then, in Heaven’s name, let us mould our general conception afresh. The fountains of Romance show no sign of running dry, and, though we may look in vain at the moment for a genius of the very highest type, the Future has possibilities within it which the greatest literary pessimist among us cannot wholly deny. If, then, fault can be found with the older Romancists for the spreading here and there of false historical notions, let us look to future workers in the same sphere for adjustment. I believe, however, that one notable critic has pronounced the mischief already done to be quite irreparable, seeing that the only "History" at all widely spread is that derived from those very romances in which errors are so interwoven with the sentimental interest of the plot itself that readers inevitably "hug their delusions!" But I think that this danger need not be contemplated seriously. The Historical Novel exists primarily as Fiction, and, even though in our waking moments we may be persuaded of the unreality of that "dream" which a Scott or a Dumas has produced for us, we shall still be able to place ourselves again and again under the spell of their delightful influence. Moreover, while admitting Dumas' carelessness of exact detail, it would hardly be contended by the most sceptical that his works (still less those of Scott) are without any background of Historic suggestiveness. Scott, indeed, shows signs of having possessed something of that "detachment" which is one important qualification in the Historian proper; there is a fairness and prevision in his historical judgments which we look for in vain when reading the works of his contemporaries.*

And, having thus touched on what I believe to be the true relation between Romance and History, I may note, as a last word, the use of the Historical Tale to those who have the training of young folk. That "desire to know,"

* That there was no fundamental antagonism between the Romantic and the Scientific Movements of last Century has been shown by that very brilliant American thinker, Professor Josiah Royce, of Harvard University. "The very spirit," he writes, "that in Great Britain expressed itself in Scott's romances, once wedded to the minuteness of German scholarship, was destined to transform the whole study of history." (The Spirit of Modern Philosophy, page 279.)

which is an essential for all true learning, is sometimes best fostered by methods outside the ordinary School routine. Thus, as regards History, where the text-book fails in arousing interest, the tale may succeed, and, once the spirit of inquiry has been stimulated, half the battle is gained. In saying this, I am far from wishing to imply that the reading of romances can ever take the place of genuine historical study. I know well that such a book as Green's "Short History of the English People" may prove to some more fascinating than any novel. There are, however, cases in which recourse may be had to a high-class work of fiction for the attainment of a truer historic sense; while, taken only as supplement to more strictly Academic reading, such a work may prove to have its uses. Considerable discrimination is required—as I have already hinted—in the choice of suitable books, and, as a help in this direction, I have made out (vide "Suggested Courses of Reading" at the end of this volume) two special lists for Boys and Girls respectively, which will, I trust, be found useful.* If, besides being of help to teachers, my recommendations should lead in any degree to further appreciation of the great masters of Romance, the labour (by no means inconsiderable) expended on this little compilation will be amply rewarded.

* These two Juvenile lists have now (3rd edition) been amalgamated.

GENERAL LIST.

"Epitomes are not narratives, as skeletons are not human figures. Thus records of prime truths remain a dead letter to plain folk ; the writers have left so much to the imagination, and imagination is so rare a gift. Here, then, the writer of fiction may be of use to the public—as an interpreter."

Charles Reade, in "The Cloister and the Hearth."

"The picturesqueness of history is largely due to memoirs ; and the countries and epochs which have produced them are especially picturesque. Now it is great crises, periods of disruption, great emergencies, which as a rule impress contemporaries and furnish matter for close observation. . . . The Great Rebellion and the French Revolution have furnished endless motives to dramatists, novelists, and painters, because they suggest possibilities of striking contrasts and afford available situations. The human interest is then most intense, and our sympathies are most easily awakened."—Dr. Mandell Creighton, on "The Picturesque in History," in Historical Lectures and Addresses.

NOTE.—The order in which the books are placed is, on the whole, according to the periods dealt with; occasionally the grouping decided on has prevented absolute correctness in this respect. Books of special worth are marked with an asterisk.

a One of several novels founded on more or less dim Old Testament characters and episodes. As historical romances, such works are almost inevitably unsatisfying; as fiction, some of them are interesting and well written. I may here specify, among recent productions of this kind, "I'elshazzar," by W. S. Davis (Grant Richards; and Doubleday, U.S.A.), and "Jair the Apostate," by A. G. Hales (Methuen & Co.); the last-named deals with Samson.

b THE KING'S SONS	G. Manville Fenn (E. Nister; and Dutton & Co., U.S.A.)	Alfred and his times.

a Perhaps the most serious omission in my original list. I have to thank the American reviewer who brought this charming tale to my notice; having just read it with immense enjoyment, I can bear special testimony in its favour.

b A very slight but charming story of Alfred's boyhood, specially suited for the very young.

*THE KING'S REEVE	E. Gilliat (Seeley & Co.; and Dutton & Co., U.S.A.)	Time of Edward I. (Welsh Wars, &c.).

a Lovers of Dante will note the absence of novels dealing with that poet; a romance of Southern France (I have not had opportunity for checking it) has just appeared in America, viz.: "Florestane the Troubadour," by Julia De Wolf Addison (Estes & Co.), which introduces Dante, Sordello, &c. I may add that a forthcoming novel ("The Harvest of the Sword"?) by Marion Crawford, will also treat of Dante.

b *STANDISH OF STAN- DISH	J. G. Austin (Ward, Lock, & Co.; and Houghton, Mifflin, & Co., U.S.A.)	America—Period of the Pilgrim Fathers.

a Ainsworth's novel, "The Star Chamber," also deals with James I., but is distinctly inferior in literary workmanship. Why will bibliographers continue the old mistake of classing "The Lancashire Witches" under Henry VIII. period? The introduction alone deals with "The Pilgrimage of Grace"; the tale itself is occupied with long-subsequent personages and events.

b This is the first of a series of tales dealing with Early American history, by the same author, viz.:—"Betty Alden" (sequel to above); "A Nameless Nobleman" (half-century later than "Standish of Standish"), with its sequel, "Dr. Le Baron and his Daughters" (all published by Houghton, Mifflin, & Co.).

NOTE.—I have seen it urged that occurrences of a year or two ago should be reckoned as "History." Surely we see events more truly, in one sense, after the lapse of years, even though exact details tend to fade away? Many of us, while we regard the Franco-German War as History proper, feel that the men and deeds of the Eighties and Nineties are, as it were, a part of our own environment; the stage of impartial judgment (or, at least, approximation to such) has not been reached. Accordingly I am content to end, as before, with the early Seventies.

SUPPLEMENTARY LIST OF NOTABLE NOVELS.

(SEMI-HISTORICAL.)

"Any narrative which presents faithfully a day and a generation is, of necessity, historical."

Owen Wister, in "The Virginian."

a SUPPLEMENTARY LIST OF NOTABLE NOVELS

Which, while not strictly "Historical," in some way represent bygone periods.

a Nothing like exhaustiveness is claimed for this "Supplementary List"; the method of study therein indicated might be indefinitely extended, but the works given form an almost necessary starting-point. A less restricted list would, of course, include the Semi-Historic examples of such foreign authors as Madame de Staël, Balzac, Spielhagen, &c. The purport of this book being primarily in the direction of Historical Romance proper, I have confined my attention here to a comparatively few works on the borderland of my Introductory definition.

FIFTY REPRESENTATIVE HISTORICAL NOVELS.

"I love historical novels composed by a master hand."—

Lord Goschen.

"What we object to is the notion that historic fidelity is the important ingredient of an historical novel. Enough there must be ; but there must be much more than a dramatisation of history, more than the recapture of the past ; these are but objective triumphs. There must be in the historical novel what we demand in all novels—truth to the permanent qualities of human nature, and an appeal to the reader as a living man, who reads what concerns him. There must be the charm of charm."—

The Academy (February 16th, 1901).

*FIFTY REPRESENTATIVE HISTORICAL NOVELS.

“ . . . Those who are in the habit of reading the literary weeklies may have noticed how, in certain critical quarters, a growing hatred (I can give no milder term) of historical romance has been evinced. Doubtless, after the large number of mere ‘Cloak and Steel’ novels which the last decade has seen on both sides of the Atlantic, one can hardly wonder at this condemnation of the ‘Historical Novel,’ when such effusions are taken to represent it. But, it must be asked, what right has the critic to condemn an entire class of fiction on the basis of its worst modern examples? And even if this be not done, it is hardly fair to prejudge the question of romance-writing possibilities by setting forth (as some critics do) all the theoretical objections which can be urged against the blending of history with the narrations of fancy. As to the arguments pro and con, I have attempted to deal with these elsewhere, and I will do no more here than name a few leading critics who have expressed themselves, more or less openly, for or against historical romance.

* Through the kindness of the Editor of the Literary World, I am enabled to give an extract from a letter which I recently (February, 1903) sent to that paper. As the list appearing therein seems to have met with some approval, I venture to insert it here. Moreover, it may serve to show the absurdity of random statements about Historical Romance. I recently came across the following sentence in a well-known American magazine:—“Anybody can write an historical novel”; if this very confident critic were to glance down the names here given, he might be disposed to modify his easy assurance, and to admit that the term “historical novel” stands for supreme achievement as well as for pitiable failure!

Turning, first, to the 'Ayes,' Professor Saintsbury and Mr. Andrew Lang are indubitably favourable, while Dr. Richard Garnett and Mr. Swinburne may, I think, be claimed as decided, if less demonstrative, adherents.* The 'Noes' are represented pre-eminently by Sir Leslie Stephen and Mr. Edmund Gosse; in lesser degree, by Professor Brander Matthews and a 'certain writer' in The Academy. Two other champions may be summoned to this literary tournament, viz., Mr. W. D. Howells (against) and Mr. A. T. Quiller-Couch (for). Mr. Howells, whose recent work on fiction 'Heroines' would seem to show that his literary judgments are not infallible, has just been commenting adversely on historical novels (except in the case of 'a very, very few'), and against his pronouncements I think we may safely set those of our own able novelist and critic, 'Q.'†

The above remarks have been made with a view to leading up to the main object of my letter. While the opinions of learned critics (such as those just mentioned) are of very great value, may not the novelists themselves be brought forward to speak on their own behalf? As likely to help the intelligent adult reader to form his own judgment on this question of historical romance, I have made out (after much careful thought and study) the following List of Fifty Representative Historical Novels. I use the word 'representative' rather than 'best,' because I am aware that in any

* Since these words were written, a distinguished critic, Mr. Frederic Harrison, has come forward in the new rôle of Historical Novelist.

† Vide Daily News, of June 2nd and June 9th, 1902, for interesting remarks "On Historical Novels," by Mr. Quiller-Couch; see also the incidental plea of another able exponent of Fiction, Mr. H. B. Marriott-Watson, in his article—"The Old Controversy" (i.e., between Realism and Romance)—in The Monthly Review, for October, 1903.

such list the line cannot be drawn with exactitude between the last ten (say) of the novels chosen and the first ten of those excluded. To show that my line of exclusion had to be somewhat arbitrary, I have only to mention such examples as Pérez Galdós's 'Episodios Nacionales,' Viktor Rydberg's 'Last Athenian,' Felix Dahn's 'Struggle for Rome,' Weyman's 'A Gentleman of France,' Conan Doyle's 'The Refugees,' Mason's 'Courtship of Morrice Buckler,' Edith Wharton's recently published 'Valley of Decision,' &c., &c. At the same time, I would suggest that, as containing historical novels of almost every type, the list given will be found a really satisfactory one; and, were it desired to test any thoughtful man's partiality for this kind of fiction, I venture to think that one could not do much better than give him this list from which to choose. If, after fairly trying the quality of these fifty novels, or, at least, some portion of them, a reader remain unmoved, one may safely infer that historical romance is not for him; to hurl the dicta of eminent critics at such a one would be mere waste of time. De gustibus non disputandum. The man to whom 'The Three Musketeers' is foolishness may revel in 'Marius the Epicurean' or 'War and Peace,' but he who cannot find pleasure in any of the books named (representing, as they do, such a variety of widely-differing types) is 'past praying for'! The temptation was great to insert George Meredith's 'Vittoria,' if only to have that powerful writer represented, but the work in question has little of the veritable 'historical' romance about it; on the other hand, Mérejkowski's much-discussed 'Death of the Gods'—lacking the creativeness of fiction—is chiefly remarkable for its series of brilliant historical sketches (I think the same remark might be applied to Zola's 'La Débâcle').

Another omission that may be noted is Beyle's 'La Char-treuse de Parme'; this essentially psychological novel, with its slight historical allusiveness, would, I venture to suggest, be somewhat out of place in the list which follows. In regard to early Christian illustration, I scarcely anticipate serious blame for preferring 'Philochristus' (Dr. Abbott's scholarly and exquisitely conceived semi-romance) to 'Quo Vadis?' and other 'popular' tales."

I would add one word. It may be asked in regard to the above list—Why Fifty? To this I reply that, having made many trial lists, I found that my final evolution resulted in something almost identical with that figure; a smaller selection would certainly exclude important representative novels, a larger might possibly include examples unworthy of such supremely high company.

SUGGESTED COURSES OF READING.

(JUVENILE).

"It is no wisdom to make boys prodigies of information, but it is our wisdom and our duty to cultivate their faculties each in its season, first the memory and imagination, and then the judgment, to furnish them with the means, and to excite the desire of improving themselves."—Dr. Arnold, quoted in Sir Joshua Fitch's "Thomas and Matthew Arnold."

SUGGESTED COURSES OF READING.

(JUVENILE.)

As likely to assist Parents and Teachers, I propose to give a list (covering English History from the Norman Conquest) for Juvenile Readers; but a passing allusion may, first of all, be made to tales dealing with more ancient periods. For the illustration of Greek and Roman History, those books of Professor A. J. Church which are entered in my Pre-Christian section may be safely recommended; while the pictures of First Century life given in Wallace's "Ben Hur," Lytton's "Last Days of Pompeii," and Whyte Melville's "The Gladiators," are, perhaps, as likely to interest an intelligent boy or girl in the "teen" stage as any similar productions that could be mentioned. Turning to the Early History of our own isle, I would specially mention Mr. Henty's "Beric the Briton"; the "Æscendune" series of tales ("Edwy the Fair," "Alfgar the Dane," and "The Rival Heirs") by the late Rev. A. D. Crake; Mr. C. W. Whistler's "Havelok the Dane," "A Thane of Wessex," &c.; and the various books chosen to represent Alfred and his times.

In preparing the following list, I have had in view, for the most part, the average Juvenile taste; doubtless many of the more advanced works might be offered in special cases, but in regard to that, the Parent or Teacher can alone judge. A reference to the General List will, in most cases, reveal a more exact specification; for the sake of convenience, the tales are here grouped according to Reigns only.

Of the romances dealing with American and Foreign History to be found in the foregoing pages, many are suitable for young readers; but the sequence not being very close (for any lengthy period at least), separate lists would appear superfluous. Such writers (to mention only a few) as Fenimore Cooper, Mrs. J. G. Austin, G. C. Eggleston, Kirk Munroe, and Elbridge S. Brooks, may be particularly recommended for American History; while Scott, Dumas, Charlotte M. Yonge, Miss Roberts (author of "Made-moiselle Mori"), and G. A. Henty have all illustrated—in more or less adequate fashion—the course of events in Foreign Countries. The novels of Dumas are not infrequently considered somewhat "strong meat," but his "She-Wolves of Machecoul" and "Black Tulip" may be safely placed in any hands.

NOTE.—In the original edition of this work two separate lists were furnished for Boys and Girls respectively. It has been suggested, in more than one quarter, that an amalgamated list would be better in many ways; not a few girls have a taste for those books of adventure which are supposed to appeal primarily to their brothers and boy contemporaries, and it is impossible to draw the line exactly in that class of fiction. Accordingly, I now offer a single list, merely indicating by a letter (B for Boys, and G for Girls) those tales in which tendencies are somewhat pronounced.

In connection with this subject of Juvenile Literature, I would draw attention to Messrs. Constable's "Library of Historical Novels and Romances" so admirably edited by Mr. G. Laurence Gomme. Readers (old as well as young) are still further indebted to Mr. Gomme for his well-arranged series of extracts taken from Romantic Literature in the four volumes entitled, "The King's Story Book," "The Queen's Story Book," "The Prince's Story Book," and the Princess's Story Book." (Constable & Co.; and Longmans & Co., U.S.A.)

A little work, likely to prove useful for purposes of selection and identification, is Mr. Henry Grey's "A Key to the Waverley Novels in Chronological Sequence" (Son-nenschein & Co.).

In the School World for August, 1903, may be found an article ("Some Holiday Reading in Fiction") by Mr. C. S. Fearenside, mentioning a large number of novels and tales which cover the period 1763—1878 in British Colonial History. I would bring under notice yet another article by Mr. Fearenside on "True Story-Books of English History" in the School World for August, 1902; in an interesting manner the author touches on some representative examples of a class of literature which, though it is naturally outside the scope of the present volume, may be alluded to at this point as coming between Fiction and History proper. And this leads me to specify another important historical medium—that of Poetry. Miss C. L. Thomson's "Carmina Britanniae" (Horace Marshall & Son) contains an excellent selection of "poems and ballads illustrative of English History"; useful aid in the same direction is offered by Mr. J. A. Nicklin in his "Poems of English History" (A. & C. Black)—besides giving ballads and shorter pieces, he has selected illustrative passages from Shakespeare and the Dramatists. In "War Songs of Britain" (Constable & Co.) Mr. Harold E. Butler has given us a collection of Poems and Songs relating to Battles, &c., in British History (Boadicea to Ladysmith). In "Songs of England's Glory" (Isbister, 1903), we find yet another anthology of British Poems and Ballads, selected to illustrate "episodes of our National History." A volume of special interest to American readers is the very charming "New England History in Ballads," by Edward Everett Hale and his children, "with a few additions by other people" (Little, Brown, & Co., 1903).

BIBLIOGRAPHY

BIBLIOGRAPHY

ALTHOUGH I have adopted the heading "Bibliography," it should be understood that, in offering the subjoined list, I do not claim for it absolute comprehensiveness. There are, of course, almost innumerable Biographies, Literary Studies, Histories of Literature and Fiction, &c., in which indirect references to our subject may be traced. Moreover, in preparing this little volume, it has been found necessary to consult largely "The Dictionary of National Biography," the Encyclopædias (the Britannica, Chambers', &c.), "Appleton's Cyclopædia of American Biography," and other Standard Works of the Dictionary type. I confine myself below to noteworthy writings which deal directly with the subject of Historical Romance.

Article on Historical Romance in The Quarterly Review. Vol. XXXV., page 518. (March, 1827.)

Article on Historical Romance ("Sir Walter Scott and his Imitators," in Fraser's Magazine. Vol. V., pages 6 (Part I.) and 207 (Part II.). (February and March, 1832.)

Article on "The Picturesque Style of Historical Romance" in Blackwood's Magazine. Vol. XXXIII., page 621. (April, 1833.)

Article on "Historical Romance in Italy," by G. W. Greene, in The North American Review. Vol. XLVI., page 325. (April, 1838.)

Article on Historical Romance in Blackwood's Magazine. Vol. LVIII., page 341. (September, 1845.)

[Afterwards appeared in Vol. III. of Sir Archibald Alison's "Essays."]

Article on Historical Romance, by G. H. Lewes, in The Westminster Review. Vol. XLV., page 34. (March, 1846.)

Article on "History in Fiction," in The Dublin Review. Vol. XLV., page 328. (December, 1858.)

Lecture III. ("Scott and his Influence") in David Masson's "British Novelists and their Styles." (Macmillan, 1859.)

Article on "Historical Novels," by H. James, jun., in The Nation. Vol. V., page 126. (August 15th, 1867.)

Article on Historical Romance in The Argosy. Vol. XVII., page 364. (May, 1874.)

The Historical Sections in the Boston Public Library Catalogue of "English Prose Fiction." (Boston, 1877.)

[The brief Preface by Justin Winsor has some interesting remarks on the Historical Novel.]

Chapter X. ("The Waverley Novels") in R. H. Hutton's "Sir Walter Scott." (Macmillan's English Men of Letters Series, 1878.)

The Essay on "The Waverley Novels" in Vol. II. of Walter Bagehot's "Literary Studies." (Longmans, 1879.)

"A descriptive Catalogue of Historical Novels and Tales. For the use of School Libraries and Teachers of History. Enlarged from the List in the 'Journal of Education,' March, 1882." Compiled and described by H. Courthope Bowen, M.A. (Edward Stanford, 1882; and Scribner & Welford, U.S.A., 1884.)

The section on "The Historical Novel," in Bayard Tuckerman's "History of English Prose Fiction." (S. Low & Co.; and G. P. Putnam's Sons, U.S.A., 1882.)

The list of Historical Novels given in W. F. Allen's "The Reader's Guide to English History. With Supplement, extending the plan to other countries and periods." (Ginn & Co., 1888.)

[A useful, but very unequal list.]

The Essay on "Historical Fiction" in W. F. Allen's "Essays and Monographs." (Geo. H. Ellis, Boston, 1890.)

[An extremely interesting essay by one who was well qualified to treat of the subject.]

The partially-selective list of Historical Novels in "A Guide Book to Books," by E. B. Sargent and B. Whishaw. (H. Frowde, 1891; and Macmillan, U.S.A.)

The partially-selective list of Historical Novels given in the "Subject and Chronological Index to Fiction," compiled by Alfred Cotgreave, F.R.H.S.—being a section of the Guille-Allès Library "Encyclopædic Catalogue." (Guernsey: Guille-Allès Library; London and Manchester: Henry Sotheran & Co., 1891.)

The essay on "Sir Walter Scott," in Vol. I. of Leslie Stephen's "Hours in a Library." (Smith, Elder, & Co., 1892; and Putnam, U.S.A. New edition, with additions.)

[Sir Leslie Stephen is one of the most formidable critics with whom the lover of Historical Romance has to deal. That which it is possible to say against such fiction is said more forcibly by him, perhaps, than by anyone else.]

The series of articles dealing with "History in Fiction," &c., by J. B. Carlile, in Great Thoughts, October, 1892, to March, 1894.

Article "The Historical Novel," by Prof. A. J. Church in Atalanta for April, 1893.

The useful and partially-selective lists of Historical Tales given in "The Intermediate Textbook of English History," by C. S. Fearenside and A. Johnson Evans. (W. B. Clive, University Tutorial Press, Ltd., 1893, &c.)

The short selective list of Historical Tales given in the appendix to John Fiske's "History of the United States for Schools." (James Clarke & Co., 1894; and Houghton, Mifflin, & Co., U.S.A.)

Article on "The Historical Novel as illustrated by Sir Walter Scott," by Edwin Lester Arnold, in Atalanta for March, 1894.

The essay on "The Historical Novel" in W. P. James's "Romantic Professions and other papers." (Elkin Mathews and John Lane, 1894.)

[A reprint, in somewhat revised form, of the suggestive article appearing in Macmillan's Magazine, November, 1887.]

Chapter X. ("Sir Walter Scott") in Prof. Raleigh's "The English Novel." (John Murray, 1894; and C. Scribner's Sons, U.S.A.)

The essay on "Le Roman Historique" in "La Vie et les Livres" (First Series) by Gaston Deschamps (Armand Colin et Cie., Paris, 1894).

[A brief survey of certain modern French Novelists as represented in the excellent "Bibliothèque de Romans historiques" (Armand Colin); the introductory remarks are suggestive and possess some general interest.]

Chapters X., XI., and XII. in Prof. Saintsbury's "Essays in English Literature, 1780—1860. Second series." (J. M. Dent & Co., 1895; and C. Scribner's Sons, U.S.A.)

[Originally appeared in Macmillan's Magazine, August, September, and October, 1894. A contribution to the subject of quite exceptional brilliance and value.]

"A descriptive List of Novels and Tales dealing with the History of North America," by W. M. Griswold. (Cambridge, U.S.A., 1895.)

The Section headed "Historical Tales" in "Guide to the Study of American History," by E. Channing and A. B. Hart. (Ginn & Co., 1896.)

A Letter on "Historical Novels, Past and Present," by "Mazarin," in The Bookman (English), October, 1896.

The various historical sections in "The Comprehensive Subject-Index to Universal Prose Fiction" compiled and arranged by Zella Allen Dixon, A.M., Associate Librarian of the University of Chicago. (Dodd, Mead, & Co., New York, 1897.)

[Excellent in scope, but not always accurate.]

Article on "The Indian Mutiny in Fiction," in Blackwood's Magazine, February, 1897.

Article on "The Importance of Illustrating New England History by a series of Romances," by Rufus Choate, in The New England Magazine, November, 1897.

[Reprint—somewhat abridged—of an Address delivered at Salem in 1833. See also the volume "Addresses and Orations" (Little, Brown, & Co., 1878).]

Paper read before the College of Preceptors, on "The Use of Historical Romances in the Teaching of History," by R. F. Charles, in The Educational Times, November, 1897.

Article on "The American Historical Novel," by Paul Leicester Ford, in The Atlantic Monthly, December, 1897.

[In this article a definition of the "Historical Novel" at variance with my own, has been suggested. In spite of Mr. Ford's argument, I am still of opinion that the line of demarcation between the Historical Novel proper and the Novel of Character or Adventure can be more clearly drawn than he allows. I was careful, when dealing with this question in my Introduction, to avoid making the test one of actual historical accuracy, but there are, I have implied, certain readily-verifiable personages and events which form a basis amply sufficient for purposes of distinction. The pirates of "Treasure Island" are taken (as Mr. Ford says) from actual figures of the Eighteenth Century, but under my definition Stevenson's novel is not thereby constituted "historical" in the strict sense.]

Article on "The Neo-Romantic Novel," by G. R. Carpenter, in The Forum, March, 1898.

Article on "Historical Novels Past and Present," by Harold Frederic, in The Bookman (American), December, 1898.

[An admirably-written, stimulating article.]

List of Historical Novels, &c., illustrating the Period 1066 to 1815, in the volume "Work and Play in Girls' Schools," by Dorothea Beale, Lucy H. M. Soulsby, and Jane Frances Dove (Longmans, 1898.)

Le Roman Historique à l'Époque romantique," by Louis Maigron (Hachette et Cie., Paris, 1898.)

[Contains a fine tribute to Scott, and much interesting matter.]

Chapters III. and IV. of "The Development of the English Novel," by W. L. Cross (Macmillan, 1899).

[A very full treatment. In the Appendix are some useful lists of the earlier Historical Novels.]

The Historical Sections in "Descriptive Handbook to the more noteworthy works of Prose Fiction in the Library of the Midland Railway Institute, Derby," by Ernest A. Baker, M.A. (Midland Railway Institute, Derby, 1899.)

Article on "Three American Historical Romances," by W. E. Simonds, in The Atlantic Monthly, March, 1900.

Article on "The Reading of Historical Novels and the Study of History," by Ada Shurmer, in The Scots Magazine, April, 1900.

Chapter III. ("The Historical Novel") in F. H. Stoddard's "The Evolution of the English Novel" (Macmillan, 1900).

[A highly important contribution.]

The two sections on Historical Fiction, relating to Greece and Rome respectively, in Arthur L. Goodrich's "Topics of Greek and Roman History" (Macmillan, 1900).³

[For those requiring a fuller list of Greek and Roman tales than that given in my pages, the above will be found useful.]

Article on "Historical Novels and their uses in teaching," by C. S. Fearenside, in The School World, November, 1900.

[An exceptionally good article. The writer states his case clearly and forcibly, and his argument is all the more convincing by reason of its moderation.]

Article on "The New Historical Romances," by W. D. Howells, in The North American Review, December, 1900.

The Essay on "The Historical Novel" in Prof. J. Brander Matthews' "The Historical Novel and other Essays" (C. Scribner's Sons, 1901).

[Originally appeared in The Forum, September, 1897. Represents that School of Criticism which is most adverse to Historical Romance. Some of the Professor's remarks convey the impression that he disbelieves in any reconstruction of the Past; such an article is, surely, unfavourable to History itself, which is always more than any mere statement of "facts."]

Article on "Great War Novels," by Jane H. Findlater, in The National Review for July, 1901 (also appeared in The Living Age, August 24).

[Sienkiewicz, Tolstoy, and Zola compared as representing three different schools—the Epic, the Emotional, and the Realistic. Incidentally the authoress ably defines the province of Historical Romance.]

The Chapters on Ancient and Modern History in James Baldwin's "The Book Lover." (A. C. McClurg & Co., Chicago, 1902. Revised edition, with new lists and additional matter.)

The list of Historical Tales given in J. S. Lindsey's "Certificate Note-Book of European History, 1814—1848." (Heffer & Sons, Cambridge, 1902.)

"History of English Romanticism in the Nineteenth Century," by Henry A. Beers. (Kegan, Paul, & Co., 1902; and Henry Holt & Co., U.S.A.)

[Contains some valuable direct criticism. See especially Chapter I.]

Article on "The Novel of American History," by Annie Russell Marble, in The Dial (Chicago) for the first half of June, 1902.

[An extremely interesting, well-balanced article.]

Article on "Venice in Recent Fiction," by Louise Closser Hale, in The Bookman (American) for February, 1903.

[Marion Crawford, Mrs. Turnbull, and Max Pemberton compared. A good plea for Venetian History as "material."]

Article on "Battles in Fiction," by Eveline C. Godley, in The National Review for March, 1903.

[The authoress knows her subject well; in a brief but distinct survey she takes her examples from Tolstoy, Erckmann-Chatrian, Zola, &c.]

The "Historical Appendix" in E. A. Baker's "Guide to the Best Fiction." (Sonnenschein & Co., London; and The Macmillan Co., New York, 1903).

[Seems to indicate, here and there, a lack of first-hand investigation, but most useful and, on the whole, accurate.]

The useful classified lists of Historical Novels given in J. S. Lindsey's "Problems and Exercises in British History," Parts I.—IV. (Heffer & Sons, Cambridge, 1903—4.)

Article on "History in Fiction," by Philip Sidney in The Gentleman's Magazine for December, 1903.

[Urges accuracy in Historical groundwork; it is contended that this may be effected "without wearying the reader with dryas dust . . . information," and "John Inglesant" is cited as a crowning instance.]

The lists of Historical Novels and Tales in Mudie's Select Library Catalogue, published in January each year.

[No indication as to merit, and barely descriptive, but useful more especially on the Topographical side.]

NOTE.

English Librarians are showing a laudable desire to help readers in their choice of fiction. Among Class-Guides I may mention one recently issued by the Borough of Finsbury Public Library; not only are several Historical Novels admirably described in a "Chronological List," but the Librarian—Mr. J. Duff Brown—promises a future issue classifying "the leading novels under the historical periods or persons to which they refer."

Some of the American Public Libraries (notably Boston) have issued useful Lists of Historical Novels; reference to these may be found under "Fiction" in William I. Fletcher's "An Index to General Literature" (Houghton, Mifflin, & Co., second edition, 1901).

It is interesting to see what Novelists themselves have said on the subject of Historical Romance, and in this connection I would specially refer to the "Dedicatory Epistle" in Scott's "Ivanhoe," the very brief but exceedingly suggestive opening section in Chapter I. of Reade's "Cloister and the Hearth," and the Preface to Scheffel's "Ekkehard."

Some Notices (English and American) of "A Guide to the Best Historical Novels and Tales."

"Nothing short of enthusiasm . . . can have sustained Mr. Jonathan Nield in compiling his Guide. . . . We can promise that any one who takes Mr. Nield's short, simple, and undeniable proposition, 'The Historical Novel exists primarily as Fiction,' and uses that as an operating knife upon the mass of criticism to which Mr. Nield's Bibliography refers him, will be surprised at once by the amount of idle denunciation on this subject and the ease with which it comes away. But a subtler and more charming fallacy than mere ignoratio elenchi underlies the argument which maintains that the historical novel cannot be good fiction. Mr. Nield states this argument so fairly, that we may use his words. . . . 'To all such criticisms,' says Mr. Nield, 'it seems to me there are ample rejoinders.' And we are constrained to agree with him."

The Times Literary Supplement (Leading Article).

"The Historical Novel. . . . This subject, which has been considered from pretty nearly all possible points of view, receives additional illumination through a recent study—A Guide to the Best Historical Novels and Tales, by Jonathan Nield. . . . Every reader of historical fiction will admit the convenience of an arrangement by which one may see at a glance the periods of history that novelists have chosen or neglected."

The Nation, U.S.A. (Leading Article).

"Mr. Jonathan Nield is the compiler of A Guide to the Best Historical Novels and Tales, which should serve a useful purpose in every public library, and which many readers will be glad to have on their own shelves or tables for constant reference. . . . It would be easy to criticise such a list at points for what it contains or omits, and to add to it indefinitely. Let the critic do his best—or worst—and then go on and make a better."

Literary World, Boston, Mass.

"What is an historical novel? The question has received many different answers; and a fresh one is now attempted by Mr. Jonathan Nield, who has compiled A Guide to the Best Historical Novels and Tales, just published by Mr. Elkin Mathews and Messrs. Putnam, of New York. . . . As for saying that a man cannot project himself into a past age so as completely to represent its idiosyncrasy in every particular, and that he should therefore abstain from the attempt, Mr. Nield very truly says that neither can a man identify himself with the moral and social atmosphere of twenty years ago so entirely as this criticism requires. It is enough that he can do it sufficiently to make his characters living realities."

Standard (Leading Article).

"It may be reasonably asked whether most of us do not gain a clearer notion of the policies of the two great Cardinals who built up the French monarchy in the seventeenth century, or of the mysterious and alluring character of Henri Quatre, from Dumas than from Michelet. At any rate, Mr. Nield thinks so, and most readers will be prepared to admit that his able preface makes out a very strong case for such an educational use of historical novels as his full and carefully classified lists make possible."

The Manchester Guardian (Leading Article).

"I have abstained from some excellent arguments advanced by Mr. Jonathan Nield in A Guide to the Best Historical Novels and Tales, published a few days since by Mr. Elkin Mathews; and purposely, that I might have the pleasure of referring the reader to a terse and careful piece of work, at the end of which he will find a Bibliography setting him . . . in the way to discover whatever of importance has been said for or against historical fiction. The little book contains, besides, a well-reasoned Introduction."

Mr. A. T. Quiller-Couch, in The Daily News.

"Manifestly the Public Libraries ought to be equipped for serious reading. . . . And the obvious direct method to equip them is to organise an Association, to work if possible with the librarians. . . . The first business of such an association would be to get 'Guides' to various fields of human interest written, guides that should be clear, explicit bibliographies. . . . I may note here a very good little book by Mr. J. Nield A Guide to the Best Historical Novels, which would be useful to librarians in revising that department of fiction."

Mr. H. G. WELLS, in Mankind in the Making.

"If the modest tone in which Mr. Nield puts forth his work tends to prejudice us in his favour, the industry and, still more, the judgment evinced in his task of selection become so many positive merits. His Guide cannot, indeed, be too highly recommended as a chronological classification of the best historical romances, according to the centuries and periods which they severally illustrate."

The Bookseller.

"Mr. Nield's scheme is all right, and his list, as far as one may judge by an examination of four or five periods, is admirable. . . . The writer's suggestions, too, as to various courses of reading are instructive and pertinent; it is apparent that he has a just view of the historical novel as an implement of education; he rightly shuns those numerous novels which abound in anachronism and 'are harmful in that they present us with a misleading conception of some personality or period.'"

New York Times.

"The Guide . . . shows a wide range of knowledge, and is likely to be a very useful list. . . . An introduction deals sensibly with the question what an historical novel is."

The Athenæum.

"So admirable is the arrangement of the volume, and so interesting its contents. . . . This book should be in every library, whilst real lovers of historical romance, on once becoming acquainted with it, will wish to possess a copy of the Guide for constant use. To the elders this book will recall past pleasures in the company of familiar friends in romance. To the young it will call up visions of delightful reading in the future. And if we look to the best historical fiction for the imaginative interpretation of life in the past, its great personages, events, and movements, all leading up to our own time, Mr. Nield's 'Guide' may prove a key to unlock for us the moving drama of the world's history."

The Inquirer

"This book is indispensable for all teachers who believe in the educational value of historical fiction. It contains an interesting introduction, a classified list of the best historical novels and tales, suggestive courses of reading for boys and girls, and an extensive bibliography of the subject. Though Mr. Nield does not appear to be himself a teacher or primarily interested in education, he displays considerable insight into the needs of the teacher, and shows acquaintance with various educational books and papers which would naturally be outside the ken of the mere literary man. . . . We heartily commend the book to our readers; it combines the excellences of a useful work of reference and a dainty gift-book in quite an extraordinary degree."

The School World.

"Only a special devotion to the historical novel . . . could have qualified him to lay such an omnivorous feast before the readers of the books he inventories. For he has not merely given a catalogue of historical novels . . . but gives a list of what he thinks the principal historical novels. In this he wisely casts a very wide net, seeing that he has to suit all ages and sects of readers. . . . A good work of reference, which quite probably includes everything that an intelligent boy is likely to enjoy."

Academy and Literature.

"There is apparently no end to the ambitions and achievements of bibliographers. They are assiduous workers in every possible field of literary endeavor, and their labours reach beyond what many less indefatigable investigators would consider insurmountable obstacles. The latest bibliographer to publish his work—it must be remembered that many valuable bibliographies never pass the manuscript stage—is Jonathan Nield. . . . The general reader will find Mr. Nield's preface the most entertaining part of his book."

Boston Evening Transcript.

"A useful volume. . . . The idea of the book, the arranging of historical tales according to centuries, is a good one, and worked out with much care."

The Spectator.

"His list is the best and most carefully compiled we have seen."

The Pilot.

"A useful volume."

New York Commercial Advertiser.

"The book is both handy to consult and accurately compiled. It should have a place in every reference library."

Scotsman.

"The new volume possesses what the first volume lacked, complete indexes to Authors and Titles, and the value has thus been vastly enhanced of a work which holds a unique place in the reference library, and is a monument to the industry and patient insight of its author."

Glasgow Herald.

"A highly suggestive and interesting book. . . . The list is exhaustive and intelligent. . . . An invaluable guide."

Daily Mail.

"Schoolmasters and parents . . . will certainly welcome Mr. Jonathan Nield's Guide. . . . In the last few pages of his Introduction Mr. Nield comes to close quarters with those purists who protest that the historical novel has no right to exist. . . . When we think of the delight put within our reach by the great authors . . . we almost wonder that in his defence of the historical novelist Mr. Nield has managed to keep so remarkably cool. We do not see in what particulars the author could have improved these exhaustive lists."

Literary World.

"Mr. Nield has given us a good piece of work, for which all lovers of historical novels and all teachers of history in schools should be grateful. . . . He supplies an interesting and well-written introduction, as well as a valuable bibliography of articles and books on the subject. . . . His Guide stands on its own feet, and stands well. . . . The two short lists of books, one for boys and one for girls, seem to us likely to be very helpful. Mr. Nield has our very best wishes for his success."

Journal of Education.

"Suggestive and useful. Discriminating introduction."

Educational Times.

"A useful little manual . . . which arranges the historical fiction of the world's literature in something like chronological order, and gives an indication of the time and place covered by each. . . . That Mr. Nield has done his work intelligently all readers will agree."

New York Herald.

"That Mr. Jonathan Nield's Guide . . . should so soon have reached a second edition shows how highly the little volume has been appreciated, and how great has been the need for a really useful book of this kind."

Daily News (Leading Article).

"His opinion is seen to be of value as that of an industrious literary man with a considerable share of taste and good judgment, enabling him to successfully carry through a very notable and arduous design. . . . As the bibliography attached to his little volume shows, there is practically nothing pertaining to the historical novel which Mr. Nield has not studied and made a note of. . . . Within the limits set himself, Mr. Nield has done his work in a broad and catholic spirit."

Liverpool Daily Post.

"A painstaking and useful piece of work. . . . In an interesting introduction the author explains the principle on which he has inserted some books and omitted others in his catalogue. Large omissions there must necessarily be in any work of the sort if it is not to reach to enormous proportions, but we are bound to say that we found every book of which we happened to think in its proper place."

The Guardian.

"No one can make even a superficial examination of this work, and especially of the bibliography appended to it, without recognising the vast amount of painstaking labour that has been involved in its production. . . . The principles which have been followed in the compilation of the work are set forth in an interesting introduction, manifesting fulness of information and soundness of literary judgment. . . . Manifestly the product of immense labour and much thought."

Aberdeen Free Press.

"For the mass of men and women . . . history, except through the medium of fiction, does not exist . . . Mr. Nield's book is, accordingly, a guide to facts as well as to fiction. . . . He has written a bright preface on the historical novel as an instrument of instruction." Vanity Fair.

"The list of novels . . . has evidently been prepared with great care and diligence . . . In addition to the lists there is an interesting introduction." The Publishers' Circular.

"A very carefully selected list. . . . The work will be a valuable aid to librarians." The Library Assistant.

"It is possible, if one prefers to get his history along the primrose path, to acquaint himself with nearly every epoch of ancient and modern civilization by the perusal of historical fiction. Mr. Jonathan Nield has brought this out in detail in his Guide. . . . Writers of historical fiction in search of unexplored tracts may get guidance from this book." New York Mail and Express.

"Mr. Jonathan Nield's excellent Guide has, I believe, sold very well both in England and America. . . . When all has been said for and against novels, a good deal of knowledge may most pleasantly and easily be imbibed therefrom, if only a little care be taken in their selection." To-day ("The Diary of a Bookseller").

"Mr. Jonathan Nield's very useful Guide to Historical Novels." Daily Chronicle.

"Mr. Nield had a happy idea when he thought of this book, for it gives information of a kind which is valuable alike to the literary man and to the general reader." The Book Monthly.
